Job Details

Description

Quantum is a leading provider of products and solutions for large scale digital video and unstructured datasets. We are looking for a program manager – someone with experience in enterprise storage. Join our team to help lead and drive continued growth of our flagship product lines focused on video and unstructured data solutions.

Job Summary

As a program manager, you will be responsible for:

- Managing a focused core team through the product life management while providing clear and concise status to senior management.
- Guiding individual contributors and organization representatives through support issues to deliver programs on time, on budget, in scope.

- Developing status and phase gate review presentations for the core teams and product approval committee.
- Review, adhere to and suggest adjustments to the corporate roadmap.
- Support roadmap-planning processes.
- Be an advocate for the product/program and each core team rep/org equally, delivering balanced management across the groups.
- Support the Program Management Standards and ISO requirements.
- Metrics gathering, updating & reporting.
- Maintain and drive accountability across the program.

Essential Functions

- Must be able to communicate with others and provide guidance to others in a team environment.
- Ability to convey information and manage team members effectively in person and remotely.
- Ability to analyze information and use logic to address work related issues and problems.
- Decipher technical needs of other departments within the organization.
- Act as a communications liaison between technical and non-technical colleagues.
- Develop and maintain productive internal relationships.
- Facilitate cross-collaboration and understanding between IT and other departments.
- Generate targeted reports for different internal and/or external audiences.
- Organize and track jobs, clarify project scopes, proactively manage risks, manage project escalations, ruthlessly prioritize tasks, and problem-solve.
- Develop strategies and implement tactics to follow through on those strategies.
- Solve complex business problems within allocated time and budget.
- Represent company management to technical teams, and vice-versa.
- Influence others across the company to remain focused on desired outcomes without direct authority.

Job Requirements:

- Bachelors degree in a technology or management discipline.
- 5+ years project/program management experience.
- Experience with Agile Development methodologies.
- Strong communication skills.
- Proficient in Jira, MS Project, MS Visio, MS PowerPoint and related tools.
- PMP Certification desired.

Quantum provides a diverse portfolio of health plans for medical and prescription, dental, vision, life, disability, and supplemental medical insurance options.
